

BECOMING THE WORLD

We are born into this world as seasoned sons and daughters of a greater ancestral, archetypal family that comprises more than just that of a single species, form or process, thought or feeling. While we may breath, move and continue to evolve through the functions of the greater family context. We are "but" one part of the many. Hence, we are family with the world of the seen and unseen, the human, plants, mineral, galaxy and universe: This vast and living mystery that makes all things relatives of one.

From our first breath and subsequent births and deaths through the necessary stages and cycles of maturity our task and mission is to search for the clues of the greater mystery and give meaning, healing and structure to its order from which we all share and have membership; no matter, if we stand, walk, crawl, fly, burrow or swim. Through this search we learn to find and know our place and destiny in all of this and to make our contribution to its livelihood.

We come equipped with all the necessary seed tools, knowledge and skills. Our greatest challenge through lessons and time is to find the best ways to use them. We also carry within ourselves the secrets for how to use these sources and must learn to awaken to these and to decode their messages so that they may be revealed to us through our many initiations, choices and actions within ourselves, through one another, nature and the many kinds of encounters with the "creative". We learn the integral steps that bridge with these sources. To do and to find this we must reach beyond the archaic and the inherited beliefs and patterns of cultural and social imprinting to the deeper core of our being. Here in we find the maps needed for selecting and if necessary re-selecting the most suitable path we need to take in this life: Those that are more fitting for our needs, temperament and callings. From these we find again and know our rightful place in the grand order and scheme as full partners and members of one "lifeblood" tribe and cosmic nation.

When we are able to retrace the many steps, processes, cycles that we have passed through since our inception and coming we are able to re-remember and to re-recognize our pre-birth assignment and to join in its calling personally as well as collectively.

It doesn't matter what race we are, be it red, black, white or yellow, or what gender we may be, or what religion we practice or not or whether we are rich or poor, lay or professional or what country we may live or even if we are not of this earth. On another level or cycle we are all joined through the invisible thread that bonds us in spirit, mind and body, as a species and family. What is inherit for us all is to find the means necessary to co-exist and to learn the virtues contained within the essence of living. Living that has a sense of meaning, beauty and power within and of itself. Without this, it is not only our lives that lack the substance and capacity, but all aspects of life however, big or small as a whole. How we choose and what paths and tools guide us through our journeys influence and determine how we take part in the life of the world and become or not its richest and most vital link in it's and our continued evolution toward the infinite domain.
